

Renovated AGC Studio to Reopen as a Hub for AGC's Brand Promotion

Tokyo, September 20, 2017– AGC Asahi Glass (AGC), a world-leading manufacturer of glass, chemicals and high-tech materials, announces that its showroom, AGC Studio will reopen on Tuesday, October 17 following the completion of renovations. Located in Kyobashi, Chuo-ward, Tokyo, new AGC Studio will serve as a hub for AGC's brand promotion, introducing not only architectural glass as it did before, but also the AGC Group's various products used in urban and spatial development. The studio will offer a range of concrete solutions for a variety of lifestyle environments, including living rooms, kitchens, retail stores and hotels.

The floorplan for new AGC Studio is as follows.

1F: Brand promotion floor: Solution Café

Two galleries, the Cross Gallery and Café Gallery, will serve as exhibition spaces offering exhibits on not only materials, but also solutions for lifestyle environments. The Studio aims to create a relaxing space that people can drop by and enjoy the comfort after shopping or on their way home from work.

2F: Business floor: Material Lab

In addition to exhibiting the state-of-the-art technologies and latest products from the AGC Group, this floor is dedicated to staging a variety of events aimed at promoting communication with AGC's customers. The business floor aims to inspire customers by allowing them to touch and experience the materials and further expand business opportunities for the AGC Group.

1F: Brand promotion floor: Solution Café

2F: Business floor: Material Lab

Under its management policy, AGC plus, the AGC Group aims to utilize AGC Studio as a space to offer solutions that provide “safety, security and comfort” to society, create “new value and function” for our customers, and build on “trust” with customers and business partners.
